Training in Spain

Between October and April the weather conditions in the south of Spain rival the best in Europe. With only a few rainy days and night temperatures rarely below 0 degrees Celsius, such favourable conditions allow for productive training camps here in Europe.

As a drop-off aircraft, one, or, if required, two Cessna 208 Supercub 900s are available to provide an optimal means of getting your team in the air.

Facilities on the ground include a hangar for packing, with plenty of locations for video debriefings. As the hotel complex is only 100 metres from the airfield, family and friends can also be nearby.

With teams of 9-10 jumpers, individual training blocks can be arranged, and we can turn (almost) any idea into an effective and productive training camp for you. Team rates are agreed in accordance with the planned jumps, and we can tailor an effective training program to meet your needs. Just talk to us about what you would like to do.

Villamartin is in close proximity to Jerez de la Frontera, Seville or Málaga, providing direct flight connections to major international airports across Europe. Car rental is relatively cheap, with journey times to Villamartin ranging from 30 to 90 minutes on well-developed roads and motorway.

The hotel is ideally located directly at the airfield.

Hotel Antigua Estación

The German owner of this first-class run establishment is also a pilot with a wealth of experience catering for airports enthusiasts.

The opportunities to do other things with friends and family are plentiful; cycling, mountain biking, golfing, hiking, horse riding and much more are all possible in the immediate vicinity.

In addition, the hotel is situated only an hour's drive from both the Atlantic Ocean and the Mediterranean Sea.
